This screenshot shows the homepage of the English Oxford Living Dictionaries website. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for DICTIONARY, THESAURUS, GRAMMAR, EXPLORE, WORD OF THE YEAR, FORUM, and BLOG. Below the navigation is a search bar with the placeholder "Type word or phrase". The main content area features a large image of hands knitting with red and white yarn. To the right of the image are three small video thumbnails: "Find out more about the New OED 2nd Edition", "What's like 'leg' in darling?", and "Digitising the OED: the Second Edition". Below the image, there's a section titled "TRENDING WORDS" with a list of words: determine, shushly, nonentity, amorphyness, and jargon. There's also a "MORE OF THE DAY" section with a card for "cassava". A "POPULAR POSTS" section follows, featuring a photo of Catherine Sangster and several other cards related to hashtags, a webinar, and a quiz. At the bottom, there's a newsletter sign-up form and a "Quizzes & Games" section with a "LITTLE WOMEN" quiz and a "Oxford Global Languages" initiative.

This wireframe diagram illustrates a poorly designed version of the English Oxford Living Dictionaries homepage. Large red X's are drawn over most of the original content elements from the screenshot above, indicating they have been removed or are non-functional. The layout structure remains, showing the header, search bar, main content area with its images and cards, and the footer. The crossed-out content includes the trending words, the "MORE OF THE DAY" section, the "POPULAR POSTS" section, the newsletter sign-up, the quizzes, and the footer links.
